COMMUNITY LONG-TERM CARE INSTITUTIONS

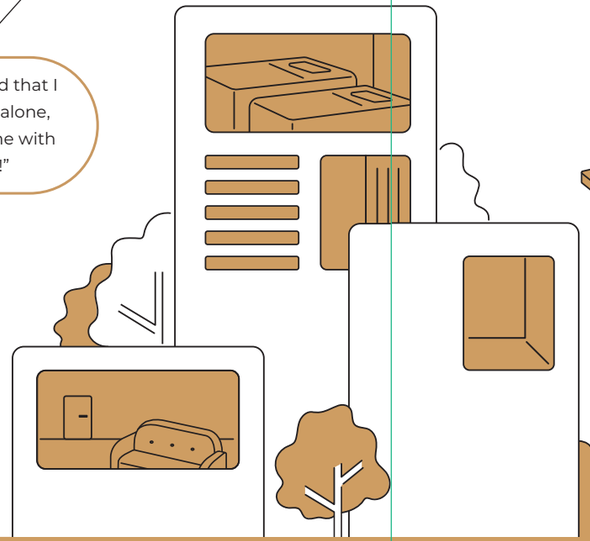

Day care centers, small-scale multifunctional service centers, group homes, adult foster care homes

Community care institutions provide not only care services, but also cultural, recreational, and group activities that help delay disability and dementia and maintain social interaction skills.

Day Care Centers

"My youngest daughter was worried that I would feel lonely staying at home alone, but coming here and spending time with everyone has been wonderful!"

Small-Scale Multifunctional Service Centers

"I can stay here overnight temporarily, so my family doesn't have to worry about leaving me home alone without care or companionship."

Adult Foster Care Service

"There are people here to help take care of me, so my son no longer has to worry about me."

Dementia Group Homes

"Just like home, with 24-hour care provided."

1 Day Care Centers and Small-Scale Multifunctional Service Centers

- Care services, meals, and recreational activities
- Increased social interaction for seniors and delayed disability/dementia progression
- Reduced pressure on family caregivers and improved family harmony
- Temporary overnight accommodation at small-scale multifunctional service centers

Case Story

Grandma Chang receives daytime care services at a day care center (offering services including small-scale multifunctional services). Occasionally, when her daughter needs to travel for work and cannot bring her home at night, Grandma Chang can even stay overnight at the center.

Grandma Chang' s long-term care service level is Level 6, and she belongs to Category 3 (16% copayment). This month, she used the following small-scale multifunctional services: 10 days of adult day care services (NT$1,130 per day), 20 transportation trips for community-based services (NT$115 per trip), and 4 overnight stays (NT$2,000 per night). The total cost was NT$21,600, of which she only needed to pay NT$3,440 herself.

Example Calculation

Calculation Method

For each service, the unit price is first multiplied by the copayment percentage(fractions are rounded down) then multiplied by the number of uses and added together:

Ⓐ Day Care Services: NT$1,130 × 16% = NT$180; NT$180 × 10 days = NT$1,800

Ⓑ Transportation for Community-Based Services: NT$115 × 16% = NT$18; NT$18 × 20 trips = NT$360

Ⓒ Overnight Stay: NT$2,000 × 16% = NT$320; NT$320 × 4 nights = NT$1,280

ⒶⒷⒸ Total of A + B + C = NT$3,440 (copayment amount)

Actual copayment amounts are subject to final calculations.

2 Adult Foster Care

- Receive long-term care services at the caregiver’ s residence
- Services include daily living assistance, safety supervision, and meal preparation
- Receive care in a familiar environment, supporting aging in place within the community

Case Story

Grandpa Wang lives with his son, who works during the day and is unable to care for him full-time. The family did not want Grandpa Wang to be too far from home or exposed to too many people. Fortunately, a nearby neighbor who is a trained care attendant had established a community-based long-term care facility at their residence to provide adult foster care, which perfectly met Grandpa Wang’ s needs. Grandpa Wang’ s long-term care service level is Level 3, and he belongs to Category 3 (16% copayment). This month, because his son worked for 20 days, Grandpa Wang used adult foster care services for 20 days. The service fee was NT$760 per day, for a total of NT$15,200, of which he only needed to pay NT$2,420 himself. If his son is unable to pick him up due to working overtime, the adult foster care service also offers extended-hours care, including dinner and bathing services. Additional fees are charged based on the actual number of days the service is used, making it extremely convenient.

Example Calculation

Original Adult Foster Care Service Cost

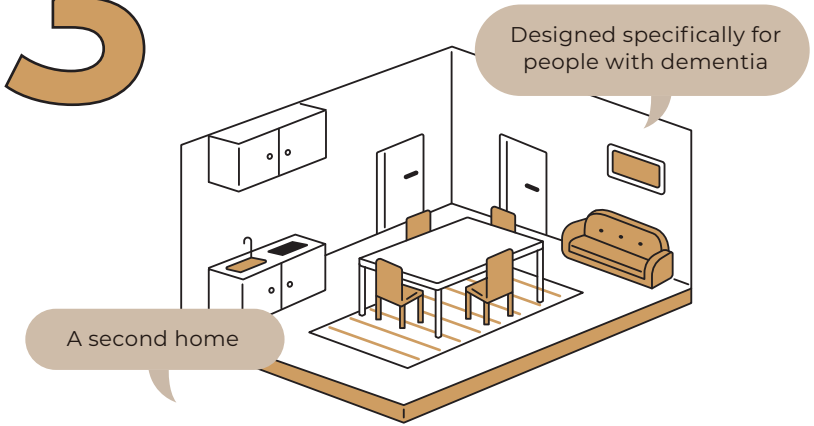

20days × NT$760 = NT$15,200

Cost After Applying for LTC Services

NT$760 x 16% = NT$121 , NT$121 x 20 days =

NT$2,420

3 Group Homes

- 24-hour individualized care exclusively for people with dementia
- Operates like a regular home, allowing residents to arrange their own daily schedules and activities
- Focuses on cognitive enhancement and maintaining daily living abilities

Case Story

Mrs. Yang, aged 66, was diagnosed by her doctor last month with moderate dementia (CDR score 2) and exhibited behavioral and psychological symptoms of dementia (BPSD). She became increasingly agitated and would sometimes leave the house unexpectedly in the middle of the night, leaving her family unsure of how to care for her. Because she was still mobile, her care management specialist recommended a community-based group home specializing in 24-hour care for seniors with dementia.

Group homes are designed to create a home-like atmosphere. Through participation in simple household tasks and interpersonal interactions, the progression of Mrs. Yang' s dementia was delayed. Fees vary by group home. Depending on the applicant' s financial condition and the severity of their dementia, the government provides monthly institutional care subsidies ranging from NT$7,000 to NT$18,000.

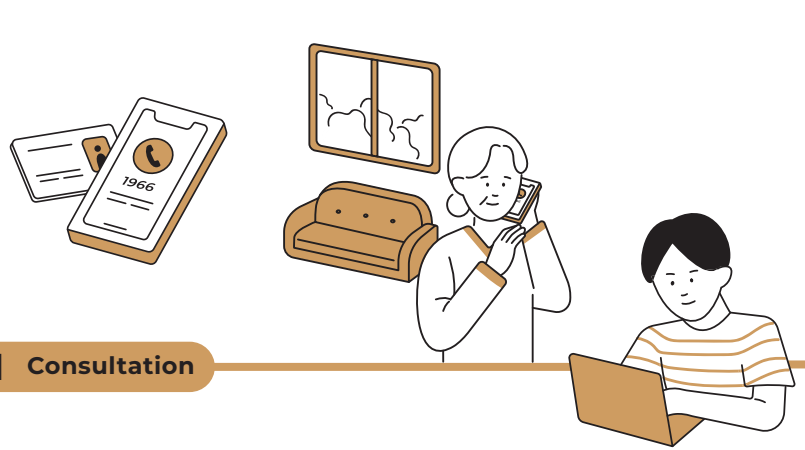

Example

CDR Score 2 | Long-Term Care Category 3

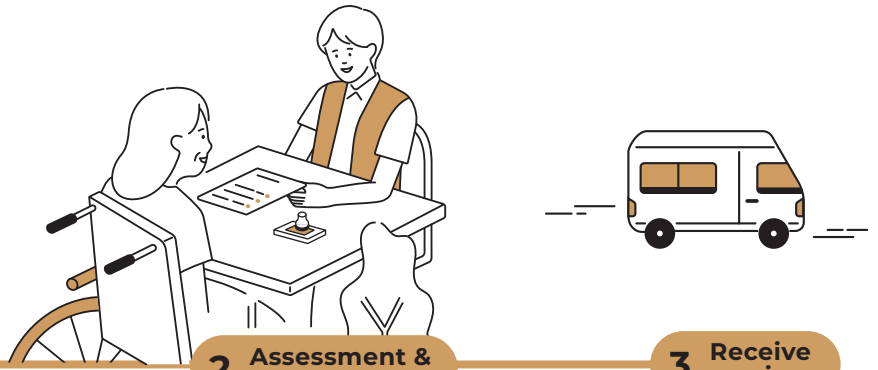

Standards for group home fees are determined by local governments, with monthly fees generally ranging from NT$35,000 to NT$55,000. Using Mrs. Yang' s case as an example (i.e., moderate dementia with a CDR score of 2 and a long-term care category of 3), the government provides a monthly care service subsidy of NT$7,000, which may be deducted from her monthly group home fee. As a result, her out-of-pocket expenses range from NT$28,000 to NT$48,000 per month.
